Call this subregion the subregion of the null region associated with the vacuous region of the first species. 153. Symmetrical Matrices. (1) In general, if  $a$  and  $y$  be any two elements and  $f$  any matrix,  $(x fy)$  is not equal to  $(y \text{ } x)$ . In order to obtain the conditions which must hold for these expressions to be equal, let the matrix be  $a j \text{ } a$  where, according to the notation 6i, 62,  $\cdot 6r$  of 141 (4),  $a(, = o e1 + ae2 + \cdot + avfe, \cdot$ . In other words the matrix is  $( a, aa, \cdot a, )$ .  $I - m - I$  Then, supposing that.  $e$ , are a set of normal elements at unit normal intensities cf. 109 (3) and 110 (1),  $(e fe.) = (e, a ) = a (e e ) = a$ , and  $(e. (be, ) = (e, a, ) = a$ ,  $(e e.) = a., \cdot$ . Hence, if the required condition holds,  $= a \cdot$  (2) Thus the matrix with the desired property is a matrix symmetrical about its leading diagonal when the elements of the denominator form a Symmetrical matrices are considered by Grassmann cf. Äußerungslehre von 1862, 391; but his use of supplements implicitly implies a purely imaginary, self-normal quadric. Hence his conclusions are limited to those of subsection (7). normal system (at unit normal intensities) with respect to the quadric chosen as...
